

I'm Rightmove qualified

I've studied and passed the Level 3 Certificate for Estate and Lettings Agents.

It's the equivalent of an A-Level, governed and regulated by Ofqual.

What does that mean?

It means I've invested time to study all areas of the property industry, learning from working industry experts and I'm now a fully qualified agent.

I have been independently examined on my knowledge of all aspects of estate and letting agency, including legal, compliance, negotiation skills and progressing your transaction through to completion.

What does that mean for you?

Formal qualification isn't mandatory for estate or lettings agents in England. Not all agents choose to undertake a formal qualification.

I believe in upholding high standards and maintaining a deeper understanding of the industry.

My qualification means:

✓ I know my stuff

So you can trust that I fully understand all aspects of your sale or let.

✓ I understand compliance

So you can relax, safe in the knowledge that I'm well-equipped to dodge any issues or delays.

✓ I understand how to operate in an ethical and dependable way

So you can be confident that I'm working hard to support your best interests as a vendor or landlord.

✓ I hold professional standards

So I know how important it is to provide regular updates, communicate clearly and provide a high quality service.

Why are Rightmove helping agents to get qualified?

Here at Rightmove we're committed to promoting industry best practice, so home-moving is as easy and joyful for UK movers as possible.

Our new qualification is designed to support this aim, helping agents achieve the highest standards of professionalism and service, so you can feel as relaxed as possible when moving home.

Rightmove is the UK's most visited property website¹, getting over 196 million visits a month².

Sources: 1 Comscore, 2022

2 Google Analytics, 2022 monthly average